Lord Hanuman

From when I was a little boy, I watched a lot of movies about Gods, but I was most particularly interested in Lord Hanuman. Lord Hanuman is the god of monkeys; he looks like a monkey, but is the size of a man. He is one of the main characters in Ramayan and he is a devotee of Lord Ram. Lord Hanuman has a lot of good traits, but to the ones that are most appealing to me are that Lord Hanuman is strong, he is loyal, and he is brave.

First of all, Lord Hanuman used his strength to help people. In one of the stories about Lord Hanuman, he used his strength and helped save the life of Lord Ram's brother Laxman. Lord Laxman was severely wounded during the war with Raavan. Lord Hanuman had to go to the Himalayas to fetch an herb that restores life. He didn't know which herb to take because there were so many of them, so he uprooted the entire mountain to save Lord Laxman's life. In the story Lord Hanuman used his strength to uproot the entire mountain to save Lord Laxman's life.

Secondly, Lord Hanuman was always loyal to Lord Ram; he did whatever he was told. In Ramayan, Lord Hanuman let his tail be lit on fire by the demons, so he could escape Raavan and burn down a part of Lanka and return back to Lord Ram. It is very important to be loyal to other people because if you are not loyal to them, it breaks their trust. For example, when my friends tell me a secret I stay loyal to them and I don't tell anyone else.

Lastly, Lord Hanuman is extremely brave. In Ramayana, when Lord Hanuman went to Lanka to deliver a ring to Sita, he became extremely hungry, so he ate a lot. The demons got worried and angry, and decided to kill him. Lord Hanuman defeated them and enraged Raavan, but he was not scared, Lord Hanuman vanquished every one of Raavan's relatives. So the moral is that it is always important to be brave no matter what happens to you. For example, you should be brave when you move to a different city and go to a new school, so you can make friends and be happy there.

In conclusion, the traits that Lord Hanuman has are good to have as long as you use them for good. I am loyal, but I would want to improve on it that I am willing to risk things for people. I am not strong or brave but I would love to have those traits if I could. Having Lord Hanuman's trait would make me better person.
